Foreword

UASA welcomes you to a team of proficiency where we all shape a better future and build a better world of work. With 130 years of trade union experience in South Africa, UASA prides itself as a labour organisation with a membership footprint across various sectors.

Through its affiliation to South Africa's second-largest federation of unions – FEDUSA, UASA has the mandate to give its direct input on behalf of its members to parliamentary bodies. UASA is also affiliated to IndustriALL, a Global Union that represents 50 million workers in 140 countries in the mining, energy and manufacturing sectors and is a force in global solidarity taking up the fight for better working conditions and trade union rights around the world. As a forward-thinking organisation, UASA saw a developing gap in the 4th Industrial Revolution (4IR) and how it is emerging towards skills development amongst Millennials in the 21st century.

Through this keen interest, UASA successfully introduced the first-ever unique spectrum for Freelancers and Part-time workers known as UASA Independent Professionals Sector. UASA distinguishes itself from other trade unions in respect of good corporate governance and professionalism. The National Executive Committee (NEC) consists of elected representatives from across all sectors who meet four times per year. The NEC also elects a Management Committee which is responsible for the day to day running of the organisation between NEC Meetings.

UASA's Vision and Mission statements are our primary drivers to exceptional work and teamwork, to best serve the interest of our members. Together with our Core Values, we strive to be the best trade union that will always be a 'members first' organisation through:

- Integrity
- Excellence
- Passion
- Efficiency
- Sustainability
- Unity

This manual will enlighten you about our service offering and will guide you to become a proud member of UASA.

Kind UASA greetings
Patience Mapitsi
President

About UASA

UASA campaigns for our members and workers and fights to protect their rights so that they can enjoy employment security.

Some members develop into enthusiastic and committed trade union representatives who persuade fellow workers to join so as to maximise the collective power of members to effectively deal with workplace challenges.

UASA also provides a funeral and maternity benefit, a study grant scheme, a 24/7 call centre and other value added benefits, the details which appear in this manual.

Trusted Support

UASA representatives are trained to deal with health and safety, pensions, disciplinary assistance and all workplace related issues. They are all dedicated to stand up for fellow colleagues and to improve their working lives.

The policy and direction of the union is driven by members through the Unions' branch, regional and national structures. Some new members join up by themselves but the majority are recruited to make UASA strong and influential in the respective workplaces.

Members can always count on trusted support from a dynamic UASA team through:

- Labour related support throughout the retrenchment process.
- Collective bargaining and consultations
- Legal assistance
- Discipline and grievance handling
- Dispute handling
- Provision of value added benefits

UASA Constitution

The constitution of UASA sets out the principles which govern how the interests of members are promoted. All members are bound by the provisions of the UASA constitution which is available to members upon request. The main objects of UASA are:

- To promote the interests of its members by articulating their needs and to plan, organise and execute activities independently.

- To promote social dialogue and to influence legislative processes in the best interest of its members and workers in general.
- To provide legal assistance to members in accordance with the guidelines and principles laid down by the Congress and the National Executive Committee from time to time.
- To promote the development and upward mobility of individuals by supporting and influencing the setting of training and education standards.
- To foster a spirit of solidarity amongst its members and to support any scheme calculated to benefit them socially, intellectually and/or financially.
- Strive that all members at least receive a living wage in a decent work and the minimum benefits prescribed by law.

UASA Vision Mission & Core Values

Vision Statement

To be a recognised and reputable organisation serving with excellence and integrity, with a developmental and sustainable focus.

Mission Statement

UASA is devoted to serving and protecting members by progressively adapting to changes in the world of work.

Core Values

Integrity: Subscribing to the highest level of honesty, ethical behaviour and transparency in all we do.

Efficiency: We take pride in what we deliver while continuously improving in what we do.

Excellence: Consistently exceeding expectations.

Sustainability: Pursue growth by increasing output through enhanced performance.

Passion: We are committed to improve, energise and inspire.

Unity: One team. One vision, with unity in diversity.

Membership Types

ACTIVE MEMBERS

Members in good standing including contractors and atypical workers. A monthly membership fee set by the National Executive Committee of UASA and is paid by payroll deduction or debit order. As an Active member you can enjoy all the benefits and services offered by the Union, subject to terms and conditions.

INDEPENDENT PROFESSIONAL MEMBERS

These are members in good standing who belong to the Independent Professional Sector. Their needs are not ordinarily found within the South African Labour Relations Act nor within the established structures such as the CCMA and Bargaining councils. UASA assists them with legal advice in terms of remuneration, contract reviews and work related civil matters.

PENSIONER MEMBERS

If you have been a member in good standing for at least three (3) years without a break, members can become Pensioner members after retirement. You can only become a pensioner member if you stop working when you retire. The Pensioner membership fee is set by the National Executive Committee of UASA annually and is paid by bank debit order.

Pensioner members are entitled to the UASA Funeral Benefit and related cash benefits as well as the full range of normal UASA benefits and services but with the exclusion of all legal and workplace-related services and benefits.

Pensioner members who become re-employed must re-apply for Active membership and pay the normal subscription fee in order to qualify for legal and workplace-related benefits and services.

LIFE MEMBERS

Members with thirty-five (35) or more years without a break (including proven membership of trade unions that amalgamated with UASA) may take up 'life-membership' by paying a once-off payment of a year's subscription after retirement.

Life members are entitled to the full range of benefits and services with the specific exclusion of all legal and workplace related services and benefits. Life members who become re-employed must re-apply for Active membership and pay the normal subscription fee in order to qualify for legal and workplace-related benefits and services.

GOLDEN YEAR MEMBERS

Individuals who join after the age of sixty (60) years become Golden Year members. Golden Year membership fees are set by the National Executive Committee of UASA annually and is payable either by bank debit order or payroll deduction.

Golden Year members are entitled to the same UASA benefits and services enjoyed by all active members in good standing, with the specific exclusion of the UASA Funeral Benefit and related cash benefits. T's & C's apply.

WIDOW / WIDOWER MEMBERSHIP

Spouses are allowed to become Widow or Widower members after the death of the main member. The surviving spouse has to contact the UASA claims department within thirty (30) days after death of the main member to let the office know if s/he wants to take up membership or not.

Widow / Widower members are entitled to the UASA Funeral Benefit and related cash benefits as well as the full range of normal UASA benefits and services, with the specific exclusion of all legal and workplace-related services and benefits.

Widow / Widower membership fees are set by the National Executive Committee of UASA annually and are paid via bank debit order.

HONORARY LIFE MEMBERS

The National Executive Committee may recommend to the National Congress to grant Honorary Life membership to any member as a reward for good service provided to fellow members of the Union.

Honorary Life members and their spouses are entitled to free membership while enjoying all the services and benefits offered by the Union.

Honorary Life members may attend meetings of the Union and participate in discussions, but they don't have voting rights.

All services and benefits only apply to members in good standing (paid-up members), subject to the applicable membership type. The onus is entirely upon members to ensure that membership fees are paid up. No fees = no services and benefits. Furthermore, members may not be entitled to labour law assistance / benefits in the following cases:

- A member pays advance or arrear membership fees in order to qualify for benefits or for waiving of waiting periods.
- If there is a pre-existing case before the member joins UASA.
- If in the opinion of UASA, there is insufficient merit.
- If a dispute is referred by a member him / herself.
- If the member has not fully completed and signed a mandate.
- In the event of a member being unwilling to use a person designated by UASA, representation may be refused and UASA will not be liable for any costs resulting from the dispute. (This also applies external dispute resolutions and to representation on any external forums).

In the event of a member not been fully paid up at the date of claim, if the arrears are brought up to date, UASA will still provide labour law advice only.

Services and benefits may be amended from time to time by the National Executive Committee of UASA.

Any concession and / or waiver of any terms and conditions by UASA, should not be deemed to be a waiver of rights of any of UASA's terms and conditions to which members are bound to at all times.

Services and Benefits 1

Collective bargaining

Description

A trade union is 'recognised' by an employer when a certain number of workers join the union.

When a trade union is 'recognised' by a company it can become involved in collective bargaining on behalf of members.

When UASA is recognised by an employer, it becomes the collective bargaining agent of its members in a particular sector. Representatives and officials are trained by UASA to become skilled negotiators who negotiate better wages and conditions of employment on behalf of UASA members. This is known as collective bargaining, as the union representatives 'bargain' for better conditions for members.

These negotiations usually happen at meetings of employers and trade union representative at Bargaining Councils. (See 'Membership landscape' section on p. 10 in this manual.)

Terms and conditions

If the union is not 'recognised' by an employer, it can still represent you as a member in grievance, disciplinary, CCMA and Labour Court cases etc. individually, but they cannot collectively negotiate better wages and conditions of employment.

Services and Benefits 2

CCMA or Bargaining Council representation

Description

If a conflict cannot be resolved through internal grievance and disciplinary procedures, a dispute regarding an unfair dismissal, unfair labour practice, promotion, discrimination, misconduct, incompetence etc. can be referred to the Commission for Conciliation, Mediation and Arbitration (CCMA) or the relevant Bargaining Council.

The Union normally does the referral and a trained representative or official will assist a member.

What you need to do

You need to forward your requests for disciplinary / grievance assistance to the local UASA service centre / representative without any delay.

Terms and conditions

If the union is not 'recognised' by an employer, it can still represent you as a member in grievance, disciplinary, CCMA and Labour Court cases etc. individually, but they cannot collectively negotiate better wages and conditions of employment.

Services and Benefits 3

Legal assistance

Description

As a worker, you need to know your legal rights and how UASA can assist you to make sure you are treated fairly.

UASA has a legal department with well-qualified staff who can give advice and who can draw up documentation as and when required. Depending on the merits of your particular case, outside legal expertise may be considered.

Members in the Independent professional sector get representation and assistance inclusive of remuneration and work related contractual matters.

What you need to do

You need to forward your requests for disciplinary / grievance assistance to the local UASA service centre / representative without any delay.

Terms and conditions

As a matter of principal, UASA may refuse to assist with or take on a case:

1. Which already exists at the time when a new member joins the union, or
2. If a member declares a dispute on his / her own without the knowledge / input of UASA, or
3. If a case, in the opinion of the UASA legal department, does not have merit. This means that the lawyers don't think you have a good case and it is their opinion that you will not win the case.
4. An annual limit of R120 000 per annum applies to members in the Independent Professional Sector in respect of cases referred for external legal assistance.

Services and Benefits 4

Labour Court representation

Description

Some disputes can only be adjudicated by the Labour Court while other unresolved cases from the CCMA may also be referred to the Labour Court.

Referrals are strictly subject to the merits of a particular case and only the UASA legal department may recommend such referrals.

Terms and conditions

UASA's involvement in Labour Court matters is based purely on the merits of a particular case and approval by senior management.

Services and Benefits 5

Section 189 restructuring

Description

Employers can legally restructure their businesses for structural, financial, technological or similar reasons. This means that they can down-size, close a department or sell-off parts of the business if the company is not making enough money. As a result, certain employees may no longer be needed by an employer and they can be retrenched or laid-off.

If you are going to be retrenched, the company has to follow the proper procedure, starting with giving you official, written notice that you will lose your job.

A process of consultation should follow between the employer and registered trade unions who represent the employees. In your case, this means that UASA will negotiate with your employer on your behalf to make sure you and other UASA members are treated fairly.

Trained union representatives will assist you if you receive a notice of intention to restructure the workplace from your employer.

What you need to do

You need to forward your request for assistance to the local UASA service centre / representative as soon as the notice of intention to restructure is served.

Services and Benefits 6

Liquidations, mergers and acquisitions

Description

Liquidations: A liquidation of a company is when your employer either voluntarily decides to bring to an end the existence of the company, or, the company is liquidated by a court order as a result of an application by a stakeholder, most commonly a creditor of the company who has not been paid monies owed.

This means the company has to sell off all its assets, such as buildings and equipment, to pay its debts.

Your employer needs to consult with you in such an event, but often fails to do so timeously. Employees affected by liquidation are left destitute with no immediate income as liquidations can take years to finalise. This means that you will not receive any compensation until the liquidation is finalised – or there might not be enough money left over to pay you what you are entitled to.

UASA's legal department provides assistance and will do their best to ensure that you are treated fairly.

Mergers and acquisitions: When a company joins with, or is taken over, by another company it is called a merger and / or acquisition which could, among other issues, have a negative effect on you as an employee as the new company may not need your services anymore and you could be retrenched.

Merging companies need to apply to the Competitions Commission and the relevant trade unions need to also be involved in the process.

The UASA legal department scrutinises these applications and makes representations to the Commission if and when required. They have your interests at heart and will do their best to make sure you are treated fairly.

What you need to do

Members need to inform the UASA legal department immediately when they receive notice of either a liquidation or merger application.

Services and Benefits 7

Workmen's Compensation (Injury-on-duty claims)

Description

An employer has to make a contribution to the Workmen's Compensation Fund (WCF) for every worker employed in the company.

If you are injured while you are at work, even if it doesn't seem like a serious injury, you must fill in the prescribed WCF forms and see a medical doctor. The forms are sent to a state-appointed Compensation Commissioner who will assess your case and decide on what compensation you are entitled to. This process can take a long time and is only completed when the Commissioner confirms that the matter has been finalised. In more serious cases, the Commissioner might award compensation if the incident is acknowledged as an injury on duty. If not, the employee can appeal the decision of the Commissioner. The UASA legal department provides advice and assistance when appeal or review cases are being heard by the Workmen's Compensation Commissioner.

What you need to do

You need to forward your request for assistance the UASA legal department who will assist you in completing the forms and submitting them.

Services and Benefits 8

Fatal accident inquiry

Description

Fatal accidents occur in the mining industry. The causes of a fatal accident and who might have been involved or responsible for it need to be established and for that reason a fatal inquiry needs to be conducted. The safety officer on a mine is responsible for the safety of mineworkers and if a fatal accident happens, the safety officer has to explain why the accident happened and what should have been done to prevent the accident from happening. If the inquiry finds that someone neglected to do their job properly, criminal charges can be laid against those responsible for the accident.

The Mine Health and Safety Act (MHSA) grants people involved in an inquiry the right to be represented and over the years, health and safety representation has become a specialist and recognised field of legal practice. Employees therefore need to have the best possible representation at these inquiries.

UASA has well-trained and experienced representatives who can assist members during these inquiries. You are not alone – the UASA legal team will support and guide you through the process.

What you need to do

If you want to ask for assistance you need to send your request to the local UASA service centre / representative in good time. Contact details can be found on page 24 of this member's manual.

Services and Benefits 9

UASA Funeral Benefit Scheme

Description

UASA contributes a portion of qualifying member's subscription towards the UASA Funeral Benefit Scheme, underwritten by Guardrisk Life Ltd – Registration No. 1999/013922/06 and FSP No 76. Every active member automatically qualifies for the benefits under the scheme, subject to the applicable waiting periods.

Qualifying members, are limited to one spouse per lifetime and a total of four biological or legally adopted children under the age of 21 who are solely dependent on the member. Children who are studying full time at a recognised institution and are fully dependant on the member are covered up to the age of 25. Disabled children, as so diagnosed by a medical professional and fully dependant on the member, are covered irrespective of age. AVBOB, Icebolethu, Martins, Mosaic Funeral Group and selected other undertakers (subject to change from time to time) are contracted to provide the 'coffin and services' benefits to beneficiaries. If you decide not to use any of the contracted service providers, a cash amount in lieu, is paid out to you or your family who can then make their own arrangements.

In addition to the coffin and services benefit, a cash benefit is paid out to the beneficiary, as determined from time to time by the UASA National Executive Committee.

The benefit is the same for standard burials and cremations and the family is responsible for paying for items which are not covered by the benefit. Make sure you know how much is covered so that you can work out how much you or your family will have to pay to make up the rest of the costs.

What you need to do

All claims have to be submitted to the UASA claims department. Remember to submit the following original certified copies of documents:

- A copy of the deceased ID document / card and death certificate of the deceased
- A copy of the beneficiary's ID document
- A copy of the marriage certificate, if applicable
- A copy of a recent bank statement or letter confirming banking details.

Please call 011 472 3600 or email claims@uasa.org.za for assistance.

All claims will be paid out within 2 (Two) working days once all documents have been received.

Terms and conditions

Subject to the availability of funds.

The following waiting periods apply in respect of a claim:

- 3 months for coffin and services benefits.
- 6 months for cash benefit.
- Immediate cover for active members who we have received the 1st months membership fee should death be as a result of accident.
- Cancer, tuberculosis and any pre-existing illnesses excluded for 6 months after join date.
- Suicide and HIV / AIDS excluded for 12 months after join date. Other terms and conditions which might be decided upon by the UASA NEC.
- In the event of not utilising one of UASA's accredited undertakers, the member or family may opt for a cash amount in order to make their own arrangements. Given UASA's preferential pricing with it's undertakers, the cash amount may not buy the equivalent services and benefit provided by a registered UASA undertaker, outside of our network. Also, members with less than 36 months membership receive the opted cash amount on a pro-rata basis, based on membership duration. The UASA claims department will advise accordingly on the amount at date of claim or query.
- Members must be in good standing to qualify for the benefit, at the date of the passing away of the member, spouse or dependant/s.
- The claim must be submitted within 3 months of date of passing to qualify for the benefit.

Services and Benefits 10

UASA Maternity Leave Benefit

Description

Expectant mothers going on maternity leave must have been a fully paid up member for 12 consecutive months at the birth of the baby to qualify for the UASA Maternity Leave benefit.

All claims must be submitted within 12 months of the birth of the baby. The value of the cash benefit paid is determined by the UASA National Executive Committee. Maternity benefits are limited to four (4) pregnancies per female member.

What you need to do

If you are a female member and qualify for the maternity leave

benefit you need to provide the following documents:

- Completed Application Form
- A copy of your identity document
- A copy of birth certificate of the child
- A letter from your employer verifying the period of maternity leave. Independent Professionals and / or atypical workers not in a traditional employer and employee relationship may be exempt from this requirement,
- A copy of a recent bank statement or letter confirming banking details.

Please call 011 472 3600 or email claims@uasa.org.za for assistance. All claims will be paid out within 2 (Two) working days once all documents have been received.
